Updated August 2023

This document contains typographical errors in the publications of Tim Coleman (home page @ <https://tim-coleman.github.io/>). These do not rise to the level of issuing a formal errata addendum to the papers, and are meant to capture only typographical issues. To the best of our knowledge and ability, the findings of the publications below are correct. Please alert me at tscoleman226@gmail.com if you find any errors in any of my other publications.

- In Scalable And Efficient Hypothesis Tests with Random Forests, published in JMLR in 2022, there is a small issue with the numbering of the Lemmas. Lemma 2 in the main text is referred to as Lemma 1 throughout the paper. Any statements about "Lemma 1" really refer to Lemma 2, e.g. in the definitions of Corollary's 4 and 5. We regret the error.
